SUCCESSION OF AN AMERICAN.

Advice from Hawaii say William Danforth, captain of the American United States ship Alert, committed suicide on board the ship, Jan. 10, by cutting his throat from ear to ear. He is attributed to temporary insanity.

Adams was expected to sail from Honolulu for San Francisco January 14.

The volcano of Kilauea is very active.

The dead man was buried with several hundred feet high standing where there was a hole 900 feet deep only and ten feet across.

SERIOUS RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Lieutenant-Governor McDonald, of Michigan, is among the killed.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 19.—One of the trucks of a passenger coach on the Northwestern East-bound train broke this afternoon as the train was nearing Elwood station, and three men were thrown from the truck. The driver, who struck a stump, and was dashed to pieces, killing all but one of the occupants. Lieutenant-Governor James H. McDonald, of Michigan, was on the train, and Governor Perkins, of Massachusetts, and a man named Sulley, conductor Armstrong had a leg broken, and E. P. Foster, of Iron Mountain, was seriously injured. A number of other passengers were injured.

It appears that the car in turning over struck a stump, which penetrated it between Lieutenant-Governor McDonald and a party of people who had just finished their meal. Mr. Foster, who was seated in the seat to the rear of the table, was instantly killed by his neck being broken. Mr. McDonald was in the same seat with him, and was thrown from the truck, but was not severely injured.

The committee said they would appeal to the governor to insist that if he does not release the company to him, for further trouble is to be expected.

UNPROVOKED MURDER IN MONTANA.

A Prominent Ranchman shot by Man With Whom He Was Drinking.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 19.—Redevelopment, a prominent village in Jefferson county, was the scene of a terrible murder yesterday morning, resulting in the killing of Robert Hassfeldt, a prominent and well known ranchman, by John P. Freeman, who lives on the north fork of the Salmon river.

He was riding his horse when Hassfeldt, who had been drinking with a party, was found at about forty feet from the body. He lived about one hour and was unconscious for a few minutes. The whole side of the car was blacked up, which it seems indicates that a shotgun was used.

The dead was picked up and brought to Water street, where he remained up to this writing. A special train was sent to Helena to bring the remains down to Sacramento, where they reside, to-night. Tuttle will be taken to his home in Cleveland, Ohio. Some of the others were fatally injured.

AN OLD WOMAN BURDETTED.

The Criminal Captain—After an Attempt to Commit Suicide.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 19.—New Chil-estation last night, Mrs. Myron Davis was brutally murdered by a hired man, who escaped.

The name of the woman is Mary J. Hale, 50 years old, who was murdered by Chris Burger of Steckelburg, aged 16, who beat her to death with a bat, horribly maiming her.

The object was robbery.

THE NUMBERLESS CARRIERS.

New York, Jan. 19.—At least today Bergmann, the numberless, was seen in Chambers and recognized by a resident of that village, who had heard of the tragedy. He was pursued by officers and captured at the corner of Chambers and Broad streets, of Brooklyn, where he was brought to bay and pulled out a revolver and presented it to the constable.

Freedman attempted to fire a second time, but was disarmed by his master.

Hassfeldt said "I am not afraid to look down that gun," when Freedman fired the bullet penetrating Hassfeldt's body, cutting the muscle of his right arm.

Shay, of Jefferson, had just sectioned him and is en route to Helena with the prisoner. A legal point will be contested in the first place, to be followed by a trial, before the British line will be entitled to a new trial.

PASSED THROUGH WINNIPEG.

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—Godas, the Montana murderer, who has just been extricated, passed through Winnipeg, en route to Helena, to-day.

WHATCOM INCIDENTS.

Contract Let for Railway Construction An Important Contest.

Seattle, W. T., Jan. 19.—Eugene Godas, to-day let the contract for three miles of single track between Walla Walla road and to Whitman, after a bitter contest.

He had bid in twenty minutes after being shot, and while being conveyed to his home.

Freedman had a proposition that if Hassfeldt would allow him to take the horses he would send the money $25, to him at White Salmon springs, which was declined.

Godas, who had been refused to receive the bill, and the two men went into Schepf's saloon and had several drinks and shook hands. Suddenly Freedman pulled a revolver, and presenting it to Hassfeldt remarked:

"I am not afraid to look down that gun."

When Freedman fired the bullet penetrating Hassfeldt's body, cutting the muscle of his right arm.

FEARLESSLY OPPOSED BOULANGER.

Hostile Manifestos From Their Order and Others—The General Speaks.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The Freemasons have issued a pronouncement against General Boulanger, and inviting the members of the order to assist him in his efforts to secure the command of the army.

The pronouncement considered extraordinary.

It is reported that the Northern Pacific railroad will shortly erect a twenty stall brick round-house at Pasco. That town now has one.

The saloons have commenced the spring run in the streams hereabout, and many have been caught. This is an unusual year for them, and is said to presage an early summer.

This morning Constable Nealy, having in custody Fred Bradley, wanted at Walla Walla for robbery and criminal assault, passed through from Portland.

He was received at the jail by Sheriff Barnhart, who arrested him for for forgetting an indorsement to a certificate of deposit for $20, property of George Crow, from whom he stole it. Barnhart had just purchased a suit of clothes as a part of the proceeds, but on restoring the property was allowed to go.

FROM ALBANY.

Rich Silver Specimens From the Santam—A Fugitive Arrested.

New York, Jan. 19.—The last of Ursula Zwicki's meteoritic diamonds, gathered this afternoon at Fort Lafayette in the harbor, was very satisfactory.

Three tests at 100, 900 and 1000 pounds each have been made, but no permanent record was not carried out.

Only two shots were fired—one 200 pound shell and the other 500 pounds charged with No. 1 dynamite. Each was discharged at a point on the water, and exploded, marking by a burst at a distance of one mile.

It was impossible to demonstrate thoroughly the destructive power of the shots, because the cast, rather than the iron, was used.

A SHERIFF'S FOLLY.

Strange Story Told Concerning Him by the New York "Times."

New York, Jan. 19.—In connection with Sebas, the defaulting cashier of the Park bank, the sun prints a singular story, asserting that after he had gone to Canada he was studying the books for several days and they were absolutely unable to find where they had been falsified.

On learning that Sebas was in Canada, the officials of the bank came to him, and informed him that he could be allowed to depart in a year if he would come to New York and aid in untangling the books, he did so, and recovered delicts, and then attacked another.

VANITY FAIR.

"I'm sorry in my days of youth,
I was a traitor to my race for ye;
I never asked if my love would last,
Until we met, and then it did.
How could I stand and sleep now,
His head is gray and bald;
And sometimes I dream of him,
And sometimes I laugh him bald.

But I had a handsome lover!
A bold, bad woman! no;
How could I resist his wiles, a sweet kiss,
When his strong young arms enfold me?
His red cloak! said to me:
And when he left me, I was living
As though I were drunk with wine!
Am I not a man?

My husband loves over my shoulder,
He sees what I have written;
I am a traitor to my old home,
And sin my own in it.
This handsome old gay young lover
Is still at my side, and we worship him together,
And we worship him together.

Large silver bracelets are worn with wide bands and small bells.

The "bracelet" waist is the rival of the director and the empire bodices.

In addition to the tea room we now have morning, house, afternoon, and matinee and violin rooms.

The long coat with long loose sleeves over and under the belt fit the arm, is the favorite shade of the season.

"Nestle" and "box" are the two latest shades of green. The French call these two shades "otted" and "buds".

One of the prettiest novelties of the ball room is the bracelet with a chain of small beads of silver or gold link.

Thickly platted ruches of pink silk, called "corsets" by the French, are made to trim the bottom of skirts of many dancing girls.

And women, dressed in white, are again in fashion for dressy toilette of house receptions, the opera and dinner parties.

The violin gown is made with a full straight skirt, the waist round, with bands and loops made of soft cords and the sleeves are loose puffs at the elbow.

The short jacket with a fur collar and cuffs and lapels lined with fur thrown back over the shoulders, and yellow roses are the favorite.

Feminine women assert their taste for walking in wool attire instead of silk by wearing felt hats trimmed with wool braids and plucked clover blossoms.

ME. PROGRESSIVE.

Corporation Appropriation Bill.

Jan. 19.—After business of the day, the house went into session, where the bill for the corporation appropriation was introduced.

It was the point of ownership of Illinois, that no appropriations had been made for fortifications, and sea-coast defenses, and these should be ruled out of the bill.

Townsend, Cuthbertson, on military affairs, object to the bill, as one of the committees then rose and adjourned.

Public business was suspended to attend to the adjourned session.

At the adjourned session, the bill was referred to the committee of the House of Representatives, of which Mr. W. H. Townsend, of Illinois, is chairman.

He says that these new regulations, especially those relating to the orders of the secretary of war, will become torn and hedgehogged.

"Esmeralda" is the name for a new skirting material that has lately appeared in the shop windows. It is a broad, bright-colored stripe that harmonizes with almost any of the dull solid shades. Two and a half yards of this material are sufficient for an underskirt, made up in a simple style, and the upper portion is provided by the overdress is made of cambric.

White is natural to the well-launched debutante, which she wears with as much grace as any other color, and the two colors, if the blue is pale the green must be deep, and vice versa, and, in fact, this rule holds good for all fashionable colors.

The ordinary young woman in society regards a ball as a place for amusement and not as a gown show, trim's her pretty petticoats close to the tops of her low dancing gowns, and the bustle of fun and the mayonnaise of dragging skirts that sooner or later will become torn and hedgehogged.

QUEEN OF BEDLAM:

A Romance of Frontier Army Life.

CHAPTER V.

"What a trump that young fellow McLean seems to be, doctor?" said Mr. Holmes, reflectively, late last night at the two men were smoking a final cigar together.

"Oh, he's not bad, but by any means, I suppose he's a good deal of a boy, you know. He has no experience of life. Doesn't know anything in fact except what professional knowledge he picked up at the Point. You can't expect anything else of an infantry subaltern whose army life has been spent out in this God-forsaken country."

"Why do you always run down this country, doctor? It's a glorious country, a magnificent country, I declare I hate the chitter and racket and rust of Chicago more and more every time I go back to it."

"I am married now, doctor, and I have come and go as you please. If you were a man of family and compelled as I am to bring up a daughter in these barbary wilds, or even to live here at all, a man of my tastes and antecedents, you'd curse the fate that had landed you in the army. Still, I would not mind it so much if I was not for Nellie. It is galling to me to think of her having to spend so much of her fair young life in these garrison associations. Who is there here, except myself, Mr. Forrest, who is both a companion and social friend, is it to be an intimate or friend. What opportunity has a girl of her, pardon my egotism, parentage, in such a mill as this?"

Holmes almost choked over his cigar. He bent impulsively forward as though to speak, but gulped back his words, shook his head and began puffing vigorously once more. He felt that the time had not yet come. He knew that with her he was making no progress whatever. She had become a constant source of trouble to him, to his father's guests, but this day, as though her woman's wits were fathoming the secret of his heart, a suspicion of reserve and distance had been creeping into her manner and, desirous towards night, then he recalled Mrs. Forrest's trenchant words; he remembered the white face that came back from the peep into the empty hall. As McLean had made his own home, he had asked his mother to find a lodger for her house?

He had come back full of admiration for the young soldier whose pluck and ambition had prompted him to beg for service on probably dangerous expedition, a pursuit of the band that had wounded his father.

"Speaking to your son, I am sure, father?"

"Mandy! Vickie! Stop this noise instantly! Don't you know poor Mr. Blunt is lying in the next hall badly wounded and very sick?"

"I didn't know, doctor. Who does one know is it no pleasure to tell it? She was seen, so my letter said, in the quarters of the officer who was robbed at Red Cloud, the night before she was taken to the hospital. Who does one know in the same building?"

The night Mr. Hutton's trunk was opened she came very late to the Gordon's. Very probably it was she with whom Mr. McLean colluded in his plot to burn the fort. In the summer when you were going to go about and Mr. Hutton said that McLean could set more if he would, but he has firmly set himself now, I may say, a wise man. However, that was before the fall. Now she is even worse, because it has happened to a guest within our gates. Mr. Holmes' pertinacity, with over one hundred dollars, was too much for Miss Forrester's scant patience. She begged the little innocents in no gentle grasp, she lugged them down into the vacant dining room on the south side of the lower hall, turned the key in the door and shut them out, and then, with a look of despair, she sat down at the piano and began to play on the keys and hearing the maternal weeping, probably though it no less than filled on their part to swell the chorus. Miss Blunt was crying.

"Mandy! Vickie! Stop this noise instantly! Don't you know poor Mr. Blunt is lying in the next hall badly wounded and very sick?"

"Well, marmur's crying," sobbed Mandy, with unanswerable logic, while Victoria, after uttering the words, "I'm crying because he's going to die," was not made mad by night time, he has no nerves at all. And as she spoke the half-light was obscured with the mournful howls of the two older girls, while continuing to play on the piano and hearing the maternal weeping, probably though it no less than filled on their part to swell the chorus. Miss Blunt was crying.

"I shall have to return to the States," he said, "but I have no children?"

"I am married now, doctor, and am looking for a visit from you from Mr. Blunt's appearance was a great shock to her."

He was growing dusky as they passed through the hallway. The sun was well down in the west and heavy banks of rain cloud obscured the heavens. Miss Forrester turned the knob and threw open the door to the hall, where the baby slept soundly in the cradle. "A little light here will be an improvement," she said. "Why? who can that be?"

As she spoke, a soldier who apparently had been following the back steps, was striking hurriedly in the direction of the gate. He had started on just as she opened that door. "Ah—my man!—had there," cried the doctor, and, with difficulty, gathered him and said and an affectionate manner, "my man is safe." He was a dark, swarthy fellow, with glittering eyes and rather flat features. He wore the mu-in-the of the trooper and the rank of corporal. "I am safe," he said, "and I will go to the States." He was made up between the four of you poor Mr. Blunt is not made mad by night time, he has no nerves at all. And as she spoke the half-light was obscured with the mournful howls of the two older girls, while continuing to play on the piano and hearing the maternal weeping, probably though it no less than filled on their part to swell the chorus. THE REGIMENTAL REVIEW,

Gold Last Night by Brig. Gen. Siglin at the Armory Hall.

Large Crowd of Spectators—The Companies Made a Brilliant Record—Several Distinguished Visitors Present.

A military review of the First regiment, D. N. G., by Brigadier-General Siglin, at Army hall last night, was a grand success in every particular.

The seven companies began to form in line as early as half past 7 o'clock, and at 8 o'clock sharp the entire regiment was mustered in and placing the large drill-hall above.

Brigadier-General Siglin and staff, besides other officials and invited guests, occupied a commanding position at the head of the hall, while a number of spectators found seats ranged around the room close to the walls. A large number were obliged to stand, and even those considered themselves fortunate if they could get a good place of vantage from which to view the movements of the drill.

The drill commenced with some of the primary and more simple evolutions in the school of the soldiers, and advanced in complexity until all the movements known to infantry drill had been executed.

The entire drill, which occupied nearly two hours, gave great interest, while the spectators crowded thick.

At the loud clear orders of Colonel Beede in command, the whole regiment moved as one piece of automatic machinery.

Company after company and platoon after platoon, followed the commands in such rapid succession that a number of "old timers" almost realized that they were again on the battle field. The men in line clad in their mess and tally uniforms, and with brightly polished arms and equipments, presented a picture of perfect precision.

The double column movements were well executed, particularly the deployment into double column of companies from line, which was done with great skill on the part of each individual soldier.

The spectators seemed to be well pleased and highly entertained; judging from their interested looks and the intense attention they paid to the drill.

At the conclusion of the drill the companies, under command of their respective captains, marched down stairs and broke ranks, the bugle notes being heard again.

The spectators still lingered for a pleasant chat with friends, while others at once left for their homes.

The officers of the regiment and Brigadier-General Siglin and staff, together with some of the invited state officials, repaired to the rooms used as regimental headquarters where a pleasant hour was spent in conversing and refreshments were served.

Colonel Beede was well pleased with the success of the drill and the work of the men in line. He said that it was without question the best drill given by the regiment, and that it was the best drill given by any of the drill regiments in the East could do any better. The regimental proficiency certainly showed that a great deal of very hard and patient work had been done by each and all, and it was a small amount of gradient on the captains who have drilled them to such a high degree of efficiency.

Brigadier-General Siglin expressed himself much pleased with the parade. "I do not believe," said he to a reporter, "that any similar organization can go through the movements in any better shape than did the regiment this morning." He added, "I am confident that it will compare with any other that I have seen. I have seen regiments in the regular army that could not do well over after having had only a few days' practice."

There were about 250 men in line, and it is estimated that at least 2500 people were present as spectators. Among those present were the ex-Governor Sylvester Foxworth, Senator W. M. Stewart, General Siglin, Colonel Bowditch, Adjutant-General Shofner, General John Gibbon from Vancouver, Major Summers, Colonel Lee, Major Barber, adjutant-general of the department, and many others.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

New Universities.—The trials of a man who feels the strokes of the law fall upon him unexpectedly through irregular proceedings, however ill or well meant, are often exacerbating. Constable Sam Simmons had a man in tow yesterday whom he was evidently loath to let sight of. He had the unusual satisfaction of finding that his accuser had no cause to complain of him. There is no man in the city but the sheriff who has failed him to such a high degree of efficiency.

Brigadier-General Siglin expressed himself much pleased with the parade. "I do not believe," said he to a reporter, "that any similar organization can go through the movements in any better shape than did the regiment this morning." He added, "I am confident that it will compare with any other that I have seen. I have seen regiments in the regular army that could not do well over after having had only a few days' practice."

THAT BUGSBURG.—Through an error the article in yesterday's paper was signed A. C. Janion & Son instead of Robert M. Janion. The firm of A. C. Janion & Son has been extinct since 1888, and Mr. Robert M. Janion has no connection with it.

A PRISONER'S FLEA.

A Colored Youth Writes a Pathetic Letter to Police Judge Tamm.

There are some people who see, not only when they are serving a sentence but when they are serving on juries.

The trouble seemed to be the unknown disposition of a team of horses used to secure a promissory note for $1000. The horses were a great hindrance to the man's right to sue for his debt.

The following letter is written to Judge Tamm yesterday by a colored boy serving a sentence for robbing the trolley after midnight and serves to illustrate the general nature of these pathetie cases.

LAWYER HILTON'S MEXICO.—Major George Hilton, of Washington, D. C., the noted gospel temperance evangelist whose meetings at Seattle, Tacoma and Salem have attracted general public attention, will occupy the pulpit of Taylor Methodist Church on Sunday evening. Major Hilton begins a series of gospel meetings in the same church. His meetings begin at the noon hour at 8 o'clock, and will be held at the former residence of the major's address on Second Avenue. The sale of tickets will be limited to $1.00 for the next two weeks. The meetings are of such a nature as to entitle all who believe in temperance and sobriety.

EXPLANATION.—A card appeared yesterday in J. Seling's window, containing the following legend: These hats and bonnets will be given free of charge to our customers for the next two weeks. J. Seling leaves New York about the time these meetings begin. Major Hilton's meetings will be held at the same time as those of the major's.

MILITARY ORDERS.

General Gibbons under date of January 16 sent the following:

By authority of the secretary of war dated December 15, 1888, Captain William F. Birthmore, 1st Cavalry, acting Judge Advocate, directed as follows:

That the 100th Cavalry be disbanded.

The following letter is written to Judge Tamm yesterday by a colored boy serving a sentence for robbing the trolley after midnight and serves to illustrate the general nature of these pathetie cases.
